

International Studies Seminar Series

Winter Term 2024/25

Mondays, 11:45–13:00, Y 311

October 21 Zeitenwende in German Public Opinion on Foreign and Security Policy: Findings from an Experimental Study
Tim Büthe, Technische Universität München

November 04 Joint Event with CPPE
The Assault in the State: How the Global Attack on Modern Government Endangers our Future
Jeffrey Kopstein, University of California, Irvine

November 18 The Globalization of Climate Change: Amplification of Climate-Related-Physical Risks through Input-Output Linkages
Richard Senner, Swiss National Bank

December 2 Illiberal Human Rights and Trade Nexus: Undermining Western Human Rights – Trade Linkage?
Ye June Jung, University of California, San Diego

December 16 Right Party Electoral Performance and Perceived Disinformation Threats in European Parliament Elections
Katjana Gattermann, University of Amsterdam

For further information please sign up on our email-list:

– mailman.uni-konstanz.de/mailman/listinfo/intstudies

See also:

– polver.uni.kn/fachbereich/aktuelles/veranstaltungen/kolloquium-international-studies

The series brings together scholars and students who are interested in current research on international politics (including conflict, development, international political economy, international organizations, and European integration).